Emergency Broadband Benefit

Español

Congress has tasked the FCC with developing a new $3.2 billion program to help U.S. households that are struggling to pay for internet service during the pandemic. With this new benefit, eligible households can get or stay connected in order to work remotely or find jobs, access critical healthcare services, and keep students connected to the classroom.

"We need to use all available tools to get 100% of us connected in this country and this program is an essential part of making that happen."
Acting Chairman Jessica Rosenworcel

About the Emergency Broadband Benefit

The Emergency Broadband Benefit provides a discount of up to $50 per month towards broadband service for eligible households and up to $75 per month for those on Tribal lands. Eligible households can also receive a one-time discount of up to $100 to purchase a laptop, desktop, or tablet from participating providers if they contribute $10-$50 toward the purchase price.

Program eligibility details and participating providers will be announced in the coming weeks.

The FCC is mobilizing people and organizations to help share important consumer information about the Emergency Broadband Benefit Program. Register to participate as an outreach partner @:
